

Independence Area Dollars for Scholars Donors Policy Statements

- Donors may contribute to the Independence Area Dollars for Scholars. Independence Area Dollars for Scholars' policy is to convert non-cash gifts to cash as soon as possible. Donations are tax deductible to the extent provided by law.
- Independence Area Dollars for Scholars allows a variety of gift types and provides opportunities for donors to consider, and those are more completely described in this Policy. Independence Area Dollars for scholars encourages gifts of cash, securities, tangible property, and a variety of deferred and planned gifts.
- Once Independence Area Dollar for Scholars accepts a gift, it becomes the property of Independence Area Dollar for Scholars, to be used or disposed of in accordance with the policies established by the Independence Area Dollars for Scholars Board of Directors. Gifts of personal property or gifts-in-kind may be accepted based upon their marketability and/or their potential use for the Independence Area Dollars for scholars' stated purposes.
- All gifts will receive an acknowledgment letter or an appropriate receipt. However, current IRS regulations require that the receipt of gifts valued at $250 or more be accompanied by a written statement from Independence Area Dollars for Scholars confirming the donation and describing the benefits, or lack thereof, received by the donor.
- The valuation of gifts of tangible personal property and gifts-in-kind for the donor's tax purposes shall be the responsibility of the donor and not of Independence Area Dollars for Scholars or any volunteer representing Independence Area Dollars for Scholars.
- Prospective donors shall be encouraged in correspondence, printed brochures, and conversations to seek their own legal or tax counsel. The donor shall also be informed that all legal interpretations, advice, and tax deductions shall be based on information obtained from the donor's own counsel. Neither the Board of Directors nor any representative of Independence Area Dollars for Scholars shall provide legal or tax advice to a prospective donor, unless specifically authorized to do so by the Board of Directors.
- Notification of naming Independence Area Dollars for Scholars as a beneficiary in a will or in a trust shall be directed to Independence Area Dollars for Scholars.
