

Attilio & Alice Chistolini Endowment

Attilio and Alice Chistolini were lifelong residents of Westfield, with the exception of two years of Attilio's youth spent in Italy. They loved their hometown very much. Attilio and Alice were married for nearly 57 years, and they raised four sons and a daughter here. They were loving grandparents to nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Attilio, nicknamed "Cope," worked at Stanley Home Products as a shipping clerk for his entire forty year career. He was active in the St. Rocco's Men's Club and the Italian Fraternal Club, serving both organizations as a bartender for a number of years. Bowling, bocce, and cards in a local pitch league were among his favorite activities. Attilio was truly passionate about the Boston Red Sox and the New England Patriots, because he was a diehard fan of both teams. Attilio and Alice were active members of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament Church.

After raising her family, Alice worked in the Westfield school lunch program for 25 years. She loved helping the children of Westfield in any way she could both at school and at church. Through this scholarship, this goal will continue to be met in her memory. Alice was well known in the community for the delicious cookies she baked for holidays and church functions. It was very rewarding for her to see people enjoying her cookies! Alice also enjoyed gardening and traveling on cruise ships. She walked four miles a day around town virtually every day of her retirement.

Attilio and Alice Chistolini both died in 2002. Tom and Jennifer Chistolini established this scholarship in 2003 to honor the memory of Tom's loving parents.
